Thinking Critically about community

Consider the following statements and note your response in the spaces below.

1) Community is a thing of the past.

2) People choose their own communities.

3) Community doesn't happen by accident. It has to be made.

4) 'Community can be the warmly persuasive word to describe an existing set of relationships, or the warmly persuasive word to describe an alternative set of relationships.'
(Sociologist Raymond Williams 1976)